DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a two story stone house with a jerkin-head gable roof of slate over the main portion of the house. There is a gabled wing on the rear, a one story hip roofed addition on the south side, and a jerkin-head gabled wing on the front on the northwest end. The latter wing has a three part bay window on the first and second story. There are three hip roofed dormers on the front of the house. One of these dormers is fairly small, and has a casement window with wood muntins that form a diamond pattern. The front door is a round arched door under a stone arch. There is a chimney on the north and south ends of the house.

112 Mill Street

This large and attractive stone house was built in 1939-40 by W. Grason Winterbottom, Jr., son of the vice-president of the Phillips Packing Co. (See 115 Mill Street). It is the only stone house on Mill Street and one of the few in Cambridge. This residence is not historically significant. Architecturally it seems to be a composite of several styles, and, with its well landscaped grounds, adds a great deal of beauty to the lower end of Mill Street.
